SHOPS

Great Expectations

Oxygene is about to get some breathing room.

Bal Harbour Shops pioneer Oxygene is upping the ante this November by moving a few doors down from its current location to a space 1,000 square feet larger. In with the new: more high-end jewelry, super chic children's lines and a roster of new designers for grown-ups. "The décor will be out of this world," says owner Felix Cohen. "It's a brand-new concept—extremely luxurious—with mother-of-pearl mosaic partitions and onyx tables." Cohen is most excited about getting the exclusive rights to a line from the recently re-launched Paco Rabanne as well as Thierry Mugler's spectacular ready-to-wear fall/winter collection from newly minted Creative Director Nicola Formichetti (yes, the Lady Gaga guy). Also arriving are collections for children from Lanvin, Anne Valérie Hash, Armani, Dior, D&G, Fendi, Roberto Cavalli and Sonia Rykiel. 9700 Collins Ave., Bal Harbour, 305.864.0202, oxygeneboutique.com

Retail Distractions

Buzz is the operative word at Bal Harbour Shops these days. Who's coming? Who's going? News changes by the minute, but making their debuts this season for certain are Balenciaga and La Perla (September), Breguet (November), CH Carolina Herrera and Panerai (December) and—wait for it—Stella McCartney (late December/January). Also be on the lookout for expanded salons of LVMH brands at Saks Fifth Avenue just in time for the holidays. 9700 Collins Ave., Miami, 305.866.0311, balharbourshops.com

SEAH's chandelier earrings

Stars and Seasons

SEAH first became popular for its astrologically themed timepieces and then for its Destiny leather bracelets featuring Zodiac coins. Now comes the brand's jewelry line, which includes chandelier earrings, necklaces and cufflinks. The pieces feature gold-and-steel emblems with signs representing the elements and seasons. Sovinski Jewelers, Mary Brickell Village, 900 S. Miami Ave., Miami, 305.372.7844, seahwatches.com
